MSc in Human Resource Management

The new strategic partners

The MSc in Human Resource Management is aimed at professionals looking to establish or build upon a successful career in human resources.

Programme Highlights:

Establish or build upon a successful career in human resources, reflecting HR’s growing role as a strategic partner

Gain a range of analytical, interpersonal and business skills so that you graduate with the expertise to manage both human and knowledge capital effectively

Acquire a critical grasp of general business principles and data monitoring and analysis in a strategic business context

Apply what you learn while you study, with skills that you can transfer easily from the classroom into your work environment

Create a Personal Development Portfolio where you’ll chart what you’ve learnt, how you’ve applied it and the results you’ve achieved

Benefit from a shared understanding of how different industries and cultures approach HR issues

Learn how to apply HR management practices in all types of organisations, from large corporations to SMEs, whether operating locally, nationally or internationally
This online masters reflects the evolving role of the human resource manager from a traditional process manager to a strategic partner.

You’ll gain a critical knowledge of the principles, current issues and trends relevant to human resource management and leadership roles in organisations, while developing your core business knowledge, skills and confidence.

The programme teaches you subject-specific competencies necessary for the management of human and knowledge capital along with broader business skills. You’ll also acquire a deep appreciation of the impact of human and knowledge capital upon the success of an organisation, while studying a range of analytical techniques required for the effective tactical and strategic management of any organisation.

You’ll enhance your critical thinking and collaborative communication skills in an international context. And you’ll develop your IT and statistical software skills, encouraging a data-driven and evidence-based approach to human resource management.

Take a lead in HR

The programme gives you a comprehensive education in human resource management, which should help you develop a successful career in HR, becoming an effective manager or leader.

You’ll acquire the knowledge, skills, awareness and confidence to achieve roles related to human and knowledge capital in a variety of organisations and sectors.

The programme paves the way for both generic and specialist HR roles (for example: in recruitment, training, performance management and employee relations), and opens opportunities in general management, consultancy, research and teaching.

Potential roles include:
- HR director
- HR consultant
- Performance manager
- Learning and development manager
- HR and administration manager
- Compensation and benefits manager

MSc in Marketing

Turning analysis into action

Our Masters in Marketing aims to provide postgraduate-level education in today’s digitally focused world of marketing.

Programme Highlights:

- Gain an advanced understanding of the theory and practice of both business-to-business and consumer marketing.

- Study a range of analytical techniques in tactical and strategic marketing, reflecting the growing reliance on metrics and analytics.

- Learn alongside international peers from a range of backgrounds and cultures.

- Acquire the contemporary skills required by this complex and evolving industry, including an operational understanding of how to drive your organisation forward.

- Adopt an international mindset. This MSc in Marketing will help you develop the expertise to identify key trends inherent to local and global markets.

- Apply the practical skills you learn directly in your work environment while you study.

- Create a Personal Development Portfolio, where you can chart what you’ve learnt, how you’ve applied it and the results you’ve achieved, allowing you to critically reflect on your learning.
The online MSc in Marketing reflects the strategic nature of marketing in driving organisations forward profitably, while continuing to meet customer expectations.

You will acquire an in-depth knowledge of the principles, current issues and trends relevant to the role of marketing in organisations, developing subject-specific and key transferable skills.

In the digital world, even small or medium-sized companies need to operate with an international perspective. This MSc in Marketing will help you develop the expertise to identify key trends in your local and international markets.

You’ll also have the opportunity to acquire a range of analytical techniques for effective tactical and strategic marketing. And you’ll develop your IT skills and become familiar with a range of financial and statistical software used in marketing management, encouraging a data-driven and evidence-based approach.

Achieve your career aspirations

On graduation you will be prepared to operate in a landscape dominated by data-driven and digital marketing. You will have enhanced access to a wide range of marketing and leadership positions and an understanding of the changing nature of the business environment.

You’ll be equipped with the knowledge, skills, awareness, and confidence to fill senior roles in private, public and voluntary sector organisations, including smaller organisations and professional partnerships.

Both generic and specialist roles (such as managing the marketing function operationally and through further development, strategically) are available. And you will enjoy additional opportunities for consultancy, research and teaching in all of these areas. Some potential career paths include:

- Marketing manager
- Marketing consultant
- Product manager
- Account director
- Channel specialist
- Online marketing manager

Admission requirements

The ULMS online masters and postgraduate certificate programmes are aimed at professionals and graduates looking to further their careers and gain knowledge they can apply immediately in their work. We welcome applications from people all over the world, at any time of the year.

The programmes are all based on the demands of today’s fast-moving business world. We expect our students to be able to demonstrate real business skills, experience and knowledge that will enrich their studies and help them gain maximum benefit from our online masters programme.

How to apply

It’s our aim to make the application process as smooth and straightforward as possible. The first step is to get in touch with one of our dedicated enrolment advisors. They will advise and guide you through the application process, help you prepare the information we need, and explain your options to you.

Entry requirements

When you apply, we will consider both your educational qualifications and your work experience. In general, you will be expected to have a bachelor’s degree from an accredited college or university, or a degree from a recognised institution comparable or equivalent to a British honours degree.

If you do not directly meet the educational requirements, you will be evaluated on an individual basis, taking into account any vocational and professional qualifications and working experience.

English proficiency

All of our online programmes are taught in English. So if English is not your first language, you will need to demonstrate English proficiency comparable to IELTS 6.5, TEEP 6.5, TOEFL 600, or GCSE C.

After that, you will need to:

1. Submit an online application form
2. Provide the required documents (for example, identification and certificates)
3. Pay an application fee

Your application will then be passed to the Admissions Team, and provided it meets the entry requirements, we will assess your application.
